Charles H Potter : Greenhouse-grown cut flowers before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Greenhouse-grown cut flowers:

The modern greenhouse grower is faced with more complex problems than was his father or grandfather. Speedy Transportation has wrought great changes. Yet in every area there is always something which the greenhouse grower can produce in line with his local climatic conditions and the available market and which will bring him a profit, provided, of course that he does a good job growing.
